Learn How To Get Your Articles Published

Now it's time to start sending your article to those publishers who are dying for your fresh, new content! So how do you find them, and get your article to them? There are several ways.

First, publish your work to free content mailing lists where publishers subscribe for the sole reason of receiving content. Here are a few which you can post to (these are subscribe addresses, please read their posting rules prior to posting):

mailto:Free-Content-subscribe@egroups.com mailto:PublishInYours-subscribe@onelist.com mailto:article_announce-subscribe@egroups.com mailto:articles_archives-subscribe@egroups.com

There are many other free content lists and websites out there. Search around and you should find more to post your articles too, including ones dedicated to specific topics which may be more relevant for your article.

Once you've posted your article to the free content mailing lists, you need to start contacting individual publishers. Start making a list of newsletters and other publications which will accept your articles by contacting each one. It will require a little work, but many even provide an address for article submissions. Ask each if they will accept article submissions from you, what address to send them to, and be sure to allow them to remove themselves from your list if they ever want to. Build up a list of publishers over time and send your articles to them each time you write a new one.

Write articles on a consistent basis, monthly works best for most people, keep the quality of your writing up, and you should have no problem obtaining substantial free traffic from your work.
