You wanted to work from home so you could have more time for the rest of your life other than work, right? I'm sure that is one of everyone's goals.

So why spend all of your time searching around trying to learn every little detail of internet marketing on your own when you know there are others out there that already know it?

By the same token, if you know how to play the Internet marketing game, why stifle your down line and reduce your own profits by not helping them out?

From Newbie to Experienced Marketer, the ONE thing that creates more free time, develops stronger down lines sooner, and builds true residual success is effective Teamwork and Sponsoring.

It's time now, that we as home based workers do more to promote, select for, and encourage this idea.

How many of you have joined programs before and then never received more than one or two contacts (if that!) from your upline sponsor?

Think of how much time you could have saved if instead of having to sort through everything yourself, you could have been guided through the process by someone with experience.

I'm certain it could help everyone get more of that free time we're all shooting for.

Now, repeat after me. There is no such thing as GURUs. There is no such thing as GURUs. There is no such thing as GURUs.

Nobody knows it all on the Internet. It's not possible. There's just plain too much stuff to do and to know.

Yet, imagine if affiliates in a program guided each other more, shared ideas, discussed problems, and basically just worked together. As an affiliate GROUP, they could achieve GURU status.

Why does the Internet have to be such a cold world? At 'regular jobs', people go over things together, work out problems, and build solid working relationships. Only there, it benefits the company, here it benefits YOU!

A solid upline sponsor that shares his or her knowledge will create a solid, knowledgeable down line, and accomplish residual success faster.

It's time we destroyed the old Internet image of "sell 'em and dump 'em".

Lifetime residual income will not develop from customers that buy once and then never return, or down line members that are uneducated, inexperienced, and likely to give up.

Seek out businesses with good sponsoring and a concept of team work if you are just starting out.

If you're already experienced, pass it on. It will benefit you just as much, if not more, than those you share your knowledge with.

Mankind would never have designed something so complicated as the Internet in the first place if each and every child that was born had to learn the basic concepts of reading, math, and science all by themselves. Only through sharing and teaching can people expand and develop new ideas.

Effective sponsoring and teamwork is the ONE technique that both starts and continues online success, and it's time there was a little more of it going around.
