

Could We, as Net Marketers be missing a Great Opportunity?

By John Coote

Could We, as Net Marketers be missing a Great Opportunity?

John Coote

john@silver-update.com

<http://silver-update.com/ezine/current.html> <http://www.silver-update.com>

It is well known that people from all walks of life use the Internet for a wide variety of reasons. For many, their objective is just to learn or gather information. Yet vast numbers use it for the purpose of making their living.

Then masses of others with day jobs spend all their available free time attempting to make extra money in one way or another. So there's no doubt that perhaps untold millions of people are on the Net to make money.

How does this relate to the title of this article?

Simply because time is the one element that every soul on the planet is given an equal quantity of. How we use that time, will to a large extent determine how much money we can generate from our Net activity.

But what if that Internet activity actually removed the chance of us discovering perhaps little known off-line opportunities by taking up all of our available free time? Under those circumstances, the above title would be relevant, wouldn't it, if such an opportunity did exist?

Well, we believe one does. So perhaps this is a lucky day for you that could lead to a more rosy future.

This opportunity gets very little general publicity unless one subscribes to one or more specialist newsletters that cover the topic. In fact, more often than not, what appears in the mainstream press on this subject is negative or detrimental to its cause.

This is because certain entities are reported in the pro media publications as having vested interests in keeping the general public neutral, confused or anti with respect to this potentially explosive issue.

Does all this sound somewhat mysterious?

Wouldn't you like to know what the mystery concerns?

Well, here it is!

The item being referred to is the metal ... Silver!

Are you shocked?

Are you aware of what's been happening in the world Silver market over the past 20 years or so? Or more importantly, over the past 6 to 12 months?

Chances are, you know very little unless you are already into this subject in some depth. There's a good possibility that what you do know could be almost the exact opposite of the reality.

For example, are you convinced that Silver has no investment future, or that it's just an industrial metal not a form of money, as one commentator openly stated just a few months ago?

What about the price? It has fluctuated in the range of around US$4.20 per ounce to about $5.20 at its peak during the past year or so. Could you imagine a situation in the not-too-distant future where Silver went to $10 per ounce? How about $50? It happened before, in 1980 but the circumstances were vastly different to what exists today.

Believe it or not, but some analysts, experts and commentators are now suggesting that Silver could go to $100 per ounce. Can you imagine that? And they are saying this is just the tip of the iceberg, as it were.

So it would seem that for those of us who DO spend all our available free time on the Internet looking for ways to make money, we could easily miss out on an almost unbelievable opportunity, unless we are fortunate enough to be subscribed to this excellent e-zine.

Good Luck,

John Coote
© Your Financial Prosperity Corp. All rights reserved.

-----
The author, John Coote has written a free report for Readers who wish to explore the possibility of gaining significant benefits, from involvement in the Silver market. The title is "Silver .. The Sleeping Giant". Pick up your free copy now plus a valuable free gift.

<http://silver-update.com/freegifts>
-----

Get-Articles.com : 1000's of reprintable business and internet marketing-related articles.

Submit your article for reprint.