The computer is a writing machine period. It is a word processor, a spell checker, a document creator, an Email letter sender, a storage unit, a printer and a complete publishing system.

William Shakespeare never had it so good as you do with your home office computer. Shakespeare became wealthy writing plays with a crow quill pen.

Think about it the main feature of ezines on the internet is articles by writers. Every week thousands of ezine publications are sending out feature articles. What a way to have your name spread all over the internet with your feature articles in these publications.

This is free publicity. Promotion at its best. Stories that can make you rich and famous like Ben Franklin or Mark Twain or Charles Dickens. Yes writing has always been a way to fame and fortune.

Once your name gets publicised in hundreds of ezine newsletters you are on your way. It is amazing what writing articles can do. After you published hundreds of articles with thousands of copies going around the internet your name will spread like wildfire.
