If not 99% of the entrepreneurs at home, at least 95% of them are still looking for the opportunity that will present it's self and will allow them to work less and become rich in no time.

It is not impossible, however be aware of the fact that with each and every opportunity you will need to put some time and work to make it happen. If not, go and buy yourself lottery tickets.

Who of you didn't believe in the beginning of your net journey in the hype? Very few I guess, and me personally was one of those who believed in it and didn't achieve a dime, with none of those hypes.

One of the problems was that I kept purchasing new products that were supposed to make me rich, but I never took the time to read them! Nor to learn from them. What I did was just trying to re-sell the ones that came with re-sell rights.

And the ones that did not come with re-sell rights? I just thought that there will come the time when I'll have plenty of it and would read them then. Nice thought, if it wasn't for the fact that the time was short and even if the day was made of 48 hours instead of only 24, then still will be a time shortage.

So where was the problem? The products were good, they should work and give the possibility to make money with them. But do take the time to read them and learn. Do it at once. Don't put it aside with the thought that the time will come. It will not, believe me.

I am talking from experience. Make the time to read and learn from the products you purchase. Don't just try to re-sell them, when they come with re-sell rights. Learn from them, then go ahead.

It is simple as that. When you know your product, from the inside out, you will be able to write good ads for it. Make a good sales letter, a web site that convinces customers to buy.

Don't buy more than what you reasonably could read and learn from. If you go with the thought that time will come some day, you risk that you will never make time to read whatever, and certainly not learn. Products on the net do become old. Remember that three months on the net is like an year in the outside world.

That way you will simply lose. The product's momentum might be gone by the time that you find time to finally read it and learn from it. Imagine how much more you could have sold if you just took the time from the beginning to dive into it.

Make it work, make it happen for you too. It works if you try it.
