If you are a gifted writer you can easily write your way to Internet profits.

There are many ways to get the profits rolling in. Write an ebook about something that everyone wants help with.

Write newsletter articles for other newsletters to use. Write and sell autoresponder courses made to fit the outline of a persons web site.

Write ads for others who are not gifted writers. Write sales letters for others who have trouble selling with the sales letters they have.

Some people can write sales letters that will sell ice cubes to Eskimos. Those people are pulling in the big profits.

Take a look at this site to see a sales letter that makes people purchase. <http://www.profits-vault.com>

Or this one written by the same person that does exactly what it was intended to do and that is make sales. <http://www.bizpromo2001.com>

If you can write like this person does with the success that this person is having, then there is no end to the profits you can be making.

If you can look at a web site and write seven or more follow up autoresponder messages that will promote the web site without every one clicking on the stop the messages link then you can almost name your own price.

You may feel the Internet is already over run with information products, but people will still pull out their credit cards for well written information.

Use your imagination and you will see that you can write your way to profits.
